Beach Romance for Violin and Piano, Op. 23 (1893)
Schumann Märchenbilder for Viola and Piano, Op. 113 (1851)
Beethoven Quartet in E-flat major for Piano, Violin, Viola, and Cello, Op. 16 (1796)

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION:

This program offers an intimate journey through the heart of chamber music, blending Romantic lyricism and classical elegance. Glière's Ten Duos for Two Cellos highlights a rich interplay of resonant melodies between the two instruments. Amy Beach's Romance for Violin and Piano envelops listeners in lush, lyrical beauty, while Schumann's Märchenbilder paints a series of fantastical scenes for viola and piano. The program concludes with Beethoven's Piano Quartet in E-flat major, a work that embodies both balance and charm. It marks a transitional moment in Beethoven's career, bridging the Classical elegance of his early works with the bold, expressive style that would define his Romantic-era compositions.

Haydn Trio for Violin, Cello and Piano in B-flat major, Hob. XV:20 (1794)

Beethoven Variations in G major for Piano, Violin, and Cello, Op. 121a, "Kakadu" (1803, rev. 1816)

Ludwig Swan Song for Violin and Piano (2013)

Frolov Concert Fantasy on Themes from Gershwin's Porgy and Bess for Violin and Piano, Op. 19 (1987)

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION:

An eclectic program of delightful contrasts, this concert begins with Haydn's Trio in B-flat major, a shining example of Classical grace and wit. Its lively melodies and balanced structure set the stage for Beethoven's "Kakadu" Variations, where a simple theme is transformed into a playful and virtuosic exploration of contrasting moods. Contemporary composer David Ludwig's Swan Song offers a modern, poignant reflection, while Frolov's Concert Fantasy on Themes from Gershwin's Porgy and Bess infuses the program with a vibrant mix of classical and jazz influences, bringing Gershwin's beloved melodies to the stage with captivating flair.

--INTERMISSION--

Brahms Sextet No. 1 in B-flat major for Two Violins, Two Violas, and Two Cellos, Op. 18 (1859-60)

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION:

This final CMS performance brings together timeless works for a truly captivating conclusion. Schubert's Adagio and Rondo concertante sparkles with youthful vitality, while Mozart's String Quintet in C minor reveals a rare, intense depth, showcasing a darker side of his musical voice. After intermission, Brahms' Sextet No. 1—one of his most beloved chamber works—fills the stage with a rich, expansive sound. The interplay of two violins, two violas, and two cellos creates a beautiful balance of lyrical depth and spirited energy, culminating in a lively and jubilant finale.
